It is an honor to present to you the Activities Report and the economic summary corresponding to the year 2022 of the Social Promotion Foundation.

Jumana Trad

President

In this way, we have continued our work in vulnerable communities in Asia, Africa and Latin America, hand in hand with our local partners, with the aim of improving the living conditions of thousands of people. Thus, we have carried out twenty-three projects that have contributed to food security, access to drinking water, education, health, decent employment, economic empowerment and environmental protection, giving special importance to the role and leadership of women in India, Lebanon, Jordan, Egypt, Palestine, Ethiopia, Kenya, Uganda, Cameroon, Nicaragua, Bolivia, Guatemala and Peru.

With them, we have taught thousands of people to combat child malnutrition, to launch their own business initiatives with adequate training to generate income or to manage their natural agricultural and fishing resources in a sustainable manner. Definitely, to modify their present and build their future with dignity.

On the other hand, in a context marked by conflicts and humanitarian crises, with the consequences of the COVID-19 pandemic still being felt in many places, and where the war in Ukraine has added an additional layer of suffering and devastation, we have provided aid to communities affected by this situation, through the delivery of food, medicine and economic support, in Venezuela or Lebanon, and also in Spain, trying to alleviate the suffering of those who need it most.

During this period, we have maintained our commitment to our mission of promoting human development and building a more just and equitable world, always preserving the dignity of people. Looking to the future, we build on the achievements made in 2022 to continue working with greater determination and effectiveness.

Likewise, we are aware of the need to raise awareness about social justice and promote commitment, especially among the youngest, to build fairer and more supportive societies. For this reason, we have continued our activity of sustainable education for development through the initiatives "Objective 2030: EFAS for Development" and Youth MUN Madrid, in Spain, and our participation in forums and solidarity initiatives. The work of our think tanks has also continued: Center for Middle East Studies (CEMO) and Women and Equality Observatory (OMEI), so that, through research and analysis of social and political problems, recommendations based on evidence that helps to improve decision-making and promote the welfare and development of society.

I would also like to highlight our presence in the United Nations, thanks to our general consultative status, actively participating in different forums and meetings. We have collaborated strongly with other civil society organizations and governments to promote agendas in favor of the eradication of poverty, equality, environmental protection and the promotion of peace and justice.

I would not like to end without sincerely thanking all of our funders, partners, donors, volunteers and friends for their unconditional support, collaboration, generosity and commitment to our mission. Your valuable contribution makes all this work possible to build a better world, discovering a positive impact on the people who need it most.

Also highlight the commitment and passion of our team. Their dedication and professionalism are the basis of our work and have been key in facing the challenges we have encountered along the way.

Definitely, thanks to all those who have been part of our work during the year 2022, which we share with you through these pages.
